

Senior Architectural Technician

THE ROLE

HÁM is hiring an experienced Senior Architectural Technician to join its team in Oxfordshire, UK.

Immediate start.

We have a vacancy for an experienced Senior Architectural Technician to join our busy design studio near Henley, in Oxfordshire.

This is a full time role where flexible, remote working is a possibility.

The ideal candidate will have excellent technical and presentation skills, along with a conscientious and sensitive approach to design. Familiarity with construction processes, building regs and technical, traditional detailing is critical. We value the ability to communicate and collaborate with clients, contractors, sub-contractors and the wider project team.

An interest in, and eye for, high end residential architecture and historic buildings is a must, alongside a high-level of self-organisation and diligence .

Hand drawing skills and a sense of humour are very welcome. The position will appeal to those that enjoy working with conscientious, like-minded people in a productive, creative environment. The practice is currently working on a variety of new build and restoration private residential projects, both in London and across the UK. On-site experience within the UK and on private residential projects is essential

- + Vectorworks or CAD fluency non-negotiable
- + This is not an interior design or interior architecture position
- + Candidates must have the ability to work in the UK without a Visa
- + Ability to commute to the office (just outside Henley) is essential

ABOUT THE PRACTICE

HÁM is a family-run interior design and architecture practice, dedicated to creating meticulously well-considered, comfortable and high-quality spaces to complement busy family lives. Our breadth of knowledge spans all aspects of design; from consulting on exterior architecture to interior architecture and design, spatial planning, landscaping, joinery and interior decoration.

We work alongside our wider family of designers, project managers, expert craftsmen and trusted tradespeople - many of whom we have worked with for decades.
